Maison SOLAL is where the passion of a practitioner with a rather unconventional journey comes to life.

From Provence to Bora Bora, through the United States, Russia, and even the Middle East, Laëtitia shares with you her extensive professional as well as human experience.

The treatment menu goes straight to the essentials, aiming to provide completely personalized facial and body treatments.

We are all unique, which is why our vision respects an approach that is both alternative and ethical in the world of beauty, leaning more towards therapeutic than aesthetic.

"I am committed to offering you quality time, sharing my expertise, and sincerely listening to you.

Treat yourself to a moment in my hands, the time of an appointment, where the keywords are relaxation, letting go, and exchange.

When I give, I receive."

Laëtitia

The selected products for your treatments are in harmony with the philosophy of the place. It's a story of encounters and shared values with our partners. Alaena embodies French authenticity by combining naturalness and efficiency; all products are created by a dermatologist and certified by Ecocert. Each ingredient in the range is carefully chosen for its recognized benefits and its affinity with the skin.

QuintEssence is a local brand nestled in the mountainous plateaus of Mons. Julie Moulin, the creator, is committed to contributing to the beauty of the world with humility. Some of her products come from wild harvesting, and the oils used for massages are obtained through the process of solar maceration, without essential oils or other allergenic substances.

We cherish organic products that combine expertise, ethics, and a return to the essence of nature: the raw material, the virtue of the pure ingredient, its effectiveness. The common point between these two brands is the respect for nature in its entirety.
